RESPONSIBILITY.

From its source
Onward, how lonely soever its course,
How lone land is gladdened! No star
Ever rose
And set without influence somewhere! Who knows
What earth needs from earth's lowest creature? No life
Can be pure in its purpose and strong in its strife,
And all life not be purer and stronger thereby!
The spirits of just men made perfect on high—
The army of martyrs who stand by the throne
And gaze into the face that makes glorious their own—
Know this, surely, at last! Honest love, honest sorrow,
Honest work for the day, honest hope for the morrow—
Are these worth nothing more than the hand they make weary,
The heart they have saddened, the life they leave dreary?
Hush! the evenfold heavens to the voice of the spirit
Echo, "He that o'ercometh shall all things inherit!"

A CURE FOR BORES.

"I am in trouble," said Bremner to his friend Sommers, "and I want you to help me out."

"Financial?" asked Sommers, with a slight contracting of his eyebrows.

"Oh, no. Worse than that a good deal."

"I didn't know anything could be worse in these panicky times. What is it?"

"I have a friend, said Bremner, "or a man who thinks himself my friend, and whom for certain reasons I wish to shake off, but he refuses to be shaken. Now, you are resourceful man and may be able to give me a hint. I have tried everything with Snaggs—everything short of positive insult—and all to no purpose."

"What's the matter with him?" asked Sommers.

"The matter is this: He has a boy 7 years old or thereabouts, and he always persists in talking about the lad—in fact, he can't talk of anything else—and imagines every one as deeply interested as himself. I have nothing at all against the boy. He is a good enough, commonplace little fellow, like all the rest of them. I never see any difference in boys myself. They all seem equally objectionable. But Snaggs comes to our house, sits down and talks about his boy until I am nearly driven crazy. I hope you can suggest something for my relief."

"I suggest," said Sommers, "that you take Snaggs to the state of Michigan, U. S. A., and kill him."

"Why to Michigan?" queried Bremner.

"Oh, simply because they don't hang for murder there, and any penalty short of hanging should be cheerfully borne to get rid of a man like Snaggs."

"I didn't know you were acquainted with him," said Bremner excitedly.

"I'm not, but I'm afflicted in the same way myself."

"Nonsense!" cried Bremner. "I never even heard you mention your children."

"I mean that I am afflicted with a friend like Snaggs. It's a daughter in his case. His name is Gregsby. I'm even worse off than you are, for this only daughter is but 5 years old. You are two years ahead of me. By and by the boy will reach years of discretion, and he will get there quicker than Gregsby's girl."

"I don't know about that," Bremner replied gloomily. "Girls grow up so much faster than boys do."

"But they never reach years of discretion, you know."

"I don't believe any son of Snaggs' will either. The boy's father hasn't, at any rate. But I say, Sommers, an idea strikes me. Why not introduce Snaggs and Gregsby to each other?"

"That wouldn't be a bad plan," replied Sommers cheerfully, "and then we might bet on them. I'll back my man to be the greater bore."

"There wouldn't be any use in betting," said Bremner, "for if your man is as bad as mine it could only end in a draw."

"Bring your man round, and we'll test the case."

"Shall I bring Snaggs to your house tomorrow night then?" asked Bremner.

"Yes, and if you're in for a bet I'm your victim. I have great faith in Gregsby and would like to have a little stake on him."

"It's a serious subject with me," replied Bremner.

"Oh, very well, then, I'll expect you tomorrow night about 8 o'clock, though I suspect your man is not half so capable a bore as mine."

It was a few minutes before 8 o'clock when Gregsby pressed the electric button at the Sommers residence. Sommers heard him talking to Mrs. Sommers in the hall, saying: "Oh, yes, thank you, she is quite well. I'll tell you something funny that she said today to her mother."

Sommers groaned and helped himself to a quantity of the stimulant provided for his guests. The next moment Gregsby appeared, smiling, and Sommers greeted him with well feigned cordiality.

Very soon the bell rang again, and a few minutes after Bremner was introducing Snaggs to the two sitting in the smoking room.

"Beastly weather this," said Gregsby to the newcomers. "I don't mind the weather myself, but when a man has children he is compelled to think of it."

"Have you children?" asked Snaggs, with apparent interest. "I've a little boy myself, but he doesn't mind the weather in the least."

"I shouldn't say children," replied Gregsby. "I have one little girl, and she is only 5 years old, but wonderfully knowing for her age, and this weather is so bad that she misses her walk with her mamma. We never trust her without a nurse, you know"—

"I was saying," broke in Snaggs, that I have a little boy myself. He is 7, and he goes out in all sorts of weather. I don't believe in coddling children. And that reminds me of a clever thing he said to me this morning. He always comes a little piece of the way with me when I start for the office. He"—

"Ah, yes," interrupted Gregsby, "but girls are delicate little creatures and have to be taken care of."

"Quite so," agreed Snaggs. "I admit that there are disadvantages about girls that boys are quite free from."

"Disadvantages!" cried Gregsby. "You don't mean to say that a great clumsy boy is to be compared with a neat little girl? I would rather have a girl any day, big or little, than a boy."

"Oh, every one to his taste," said Snaggs loftily. "By the way, Bremner, did I tell you what my boy said the other day when I took him to have his hair cut?"

"No," said Bremner enthusiastically. "Tell it to us, Snaggs."

"Girls," put in Gregsby, "don't have to have their hair cut. My little girl has the most beautiful of golden hair you ever saw. You've seen it, Sommers. Every one turns to look at her when she walks out with her mother."

"Humph!" said Snaggs, with ill concealed contempt. "I was saying that I took my boy to have his hair cut, and it was the first time that he had ever been to a barber's shop. A man was being shaved, and his face was all over lather. Without a word the boy drew his hands from mine and bolted for home, running so fast that I didn't overtake him until he was at the door. 'What did you do that for, you young rascal?' I said.

"'Oh, papa,' he answered, 'if my face is going to break out like that, I don't want to have my hair cut.' Funny, wasn't it? He thought the lather was the result of the hair cutting. He's awfully quick at reasoning, that boy."

"Well, it seems to me that he didn't reason to a very correct conclusion. Now, my little girl was having a dress fitted the other day, and she asked the dressmaker where the dress orchard was. She thought that dresses grew on trees."

"I must confess that I can't see much reason about that," said Snaggs spitefully, "if you are giving it as an instance of reasoning against what my boy said of the man at the barber's."

"Reasoning?" hotly replied Gregsby. "I never said anything about reasoning. It was poetical. She thought dresses grew on trees, and that ribbons were the blossoms. She told me so herself. And then another time she and her mother were conversing"—

"You'll have to excuse me," said Snaggs, rising. "I remember now that I have an appointment at the club. I forgot it, Bremner, when I promised to come here with you."

"Oh, don't go yet," said Bremner. "Tell us that story about what the boy said to the organ grinder."

"Ah, yes," said Snaggs eagerly, apparently forgetting his appointment in the joy of narration. "Mr. Sommers didn't hear that one, did he? Well, one day an organ grinder stopped in front of our house"—

"I don't wish to interrupt," put in Gregsby, also rising, "but I promised Mrs. Gregsby that I would be home almost directly. I merely came over, Sommers to tell you that I could not stay tonight."

"Oh, well," cried Sommers and Bremner simultaneously, rising and holding out their hands, "if you really must go, why, you must, I suppose."

"I am very glad to have made your acquaintance, Mr. Gregsby," said Bremner as he shook hands and wished him good night, and he added: "I wish you would come over some night and see me. My friend Mr. Snaggs here often pops in, and we will all get better acquainted."

"And you, Mr. Snaggs, drop in and see me," said Sommers. "You will be nearly always sure of meeting Gregsby here. Come in often and have a chat. I have a lot of boys myself, and I like to hear about them."

"That man Gregsby is a blanked idiot," said Snaggs to Bremner a few days after, "and I give you notice that if he comes to your house I won't."

And as Gregsby said almost the same thing to Sommers let us hope that the acid of one neutralizes the alkali of the other.—Idler.

Pens Don't Go.

"Drop that!"

The prominent attorney who had just picked up a pen in the recorder of deed's office to affix a few additional annotations to a document he was about to file looked up in astonishment at his friend Sam de Jong's warlike order.

"Drop that pen, I say!" continued De Jong, smiling. "Don't you know that's a criminal offense?"

The lawyer said he didn't, and the D. R. then explained to him that there was a statute which provides that no one but a sworn employee of the department shall use a pen in the office of recorder of deeds under penalty of prosecution.

"You folks can come in here and use a pencil all you like," he continued, "but as soon as you pick up a pen and commence to write you lay yourself liable to arrest. See?"

The lawyer looked up Missouri's laws and saw.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Mummy Wheat.

The belief in the vitality of mummy wheat is so persistent that it probably will not be overthrown by the result of careful tests on Lord Winchelsea's farm. Every visitor to Egypt is besought by the Arabs to buy wheat which is declared to be a veritable portion of the grain Joseph stored in Pharaoh's granaries, but which are really gathered in the nearest wheatfield. The Arabs have even been impudent enough to offer indian corn, which is of American origin, to credulous tourists as "from a mummy." A few months ago Lord Sheffield, on his return from Egypt, gave Lord Winchelsea a handful of wheat which he had himself taken from a sarcophagus containing a mummy. A hundred of these grains were carefully planted under a glass frame. After some weeks it was discovered that the seeds had rotted away.—Philadelphia Ledger.

CITY TRUSTEES.

A Proposition to Herd Sheep on the Plaza—Other Matters.

The Board of City Trustees met in regular monthly session last Wednesday evening. Trustees Seipp, Poppe, Bulotti and Hartin were present.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

Trustee Bulotti of the Street Committee reported that he had examined the steep grade on the road leading to Mountain Cemetery and recommended that instead of reducing the grade, to buy a piece of land from C. Aguillon and make a new road leading around the steep place.

Trustee Bulotti was authorized to interview Mr. Aguillon on the subject and report at the next meeting of the Board.

It was further reported by Trustee Bulotti that the open ditch in front of L. Litzius' store on Broadway needed to be covered with planks, and he also stated that Mr. Litzius had promised to furnish the nails and do the work if the city would provide the necessary lumber.

It was moved by Trustee Poppe and seconded by Trustee Hartin that the Street Committee be authorized to examine into the matter and if necessary to purchase the required amount of lumber at the expense of the City.

It was then moved by Trustee Bulotti that the Marshal be authorized to notify Miss Martha Wooster to remove the obstruction from the sidewalk in front of her property on Broadway within ten days after being notified, and in case of the order not being complied with that the Marshal be further authorized to have the obstruction removed at her expense. The motion received a second and was carried.

It was moved by Trustee Poppe and seconded by Trustee Hartin that Mrs. Glynn and Fred. T. Duhring also be instructed to remove obstacles from the sidewalk in front of their respective places on First-street East.

The Clerk read his report of the financial condition of Sonoma City for the six months ending December 31st, 1894, which was referred to the Finance Committee.

The communication of R. M. Lee for the establishment of an electric light plant in Sonoma was laid over.

On motion Wm. Trudgen was granted an extention of thirty days in which to complete the City Jail.

The Clerk then read a petition from Mr. H. Weyl asking that he be allowed to herd a flock of sheep on the Plaza in order that they might eat down the high weeds and put the ground in better condition for plowing.

Trustee Poppe made a motion, which was seconded by Trustee Hartin, rejecting Mr. Weyl's proposition.

The Clerk was ordered to notify Mrs. J. A. Poppe, C. Aguillon, S. Schocken and the owners of the Vallejo Water Works to file their yearly statement required by law for furnishing the city with water during the past twelve months.

On motion of Trustee Bulotti the Street Committee was allowed to expend fifty dollars for graveling various streets within the incorporated limits of the city.

The following bills were allowed and ordered paid: Mrs. J. A. Poppe, labor, $2.00; John Stademan, labor, $3.00; Fred. Foutts, labor, $3.00; J. E. Robin, salary, $16.30; John Revie, graveling streets, $40.00; P. Bacala, labor, $8.50; H. H. Granice, printing, $4.50; Wm. Trudgen, building contract, $322.50; Carl Haderman, refunding poll taxes, $76.

The Board then adjourned.

Suicide of Charley Kohler.

Chas. Kohler, the senior member of the well-known wine firm of Kohler & Frohling, who own one of the largest vineyards and vine cellars in Sonoma Valley, committed suicide in San Francisco by taking morphine on New Year's night. The deceased, who was only 35 years of age, was a genial, companionable man, free from financial or domestic troubles and his relatives and friends are loth to believe that the poison was taken with suicidal intent. He was unmarried and had his life insured for $100,000.

DEATH OF SENATOR FAIR.

The Will—Bulk of His Fortune Held in Trust for His Children.

Jas. G. Fair, the richest man in California and one of the heaviest tax-payers in Sonoma county, who died at his rooms in the Lick House, San Francisco, at 11:45 o'clock on Friday night of last week, after a brief illness, left the bulk of his fortune, said to be $40,000,000, to his three children, Chas. Fair, Virginia Fair and Mrs. Hermann Oelriches—that is to say, they were given a life interest in his vast possessions, which are to be managed by four trustees.

The deceased also provided liberally for all his relations. Two hundred and fifty thousand dollars each were given to two sisters, while his brothers and other kin were bequeathed from $50,000 to $10,000 apiece. The Roman Catholic orphan asylum and Protestant orphan asylum were given $50,000 each and the Hebrew orphan asylum $25,000.

The dead millionaire, evidently fearing a contest over his will by pretended widows and orphans as in the case of Thos. Blythe, Dr. Ryer and other deceased millionaires, in the twenty-first paragraph of his will makes the following declaration:

"I do solemnly declare that I am not married; also, that I have no children other than my son Charles L. Fair and my daughters, Theresa A. and Virginia. I have noted, however, the facility with which sworn testimony may be procured and produced in support of said claims of alleged widows and adopted children and the frequent recurrence of such claims in recent years. I therefore make express provision in this, my will, as follows: I give and bequeath to such persons as shall be found proved and established to be my surviving wife or widow, whether the marriage has taken place before or after the execution of this will, the sum of $50 and to each and every person who shall be found proved and established to be my child by birth or adoption, acknowledged or otherwise, or whether before or after the execution of this will, the sum of $50 and to each child who shall be proved, found and established to be a child by birth, adoption, acknowledgment or otherwise of my deceased son James G. Fair, Jr., and whether before or after the execution of this will, the sum of $50; and I do declare that I do intentionally omit to make for the persons mentioned in this paragraph referred to any other or further provision. I make no provision for any children of my son, Charles L. Fair, whether born before or after this will, nor any provision for my said son, Charles L. Fair, other than that provided in the fifteenth paragraph thereof."

By the provisions of the will the various enterprises of Mr. Fair will be conducted by his Trustees as before his death. All his old hands will retain their places and little or no changes will be made in his business plans which have been entrusted to old and tried employees.

It is estimated there are as many as 1,000 traveling theatrical companies in the United States. This includes everything that can be considered strictly professional companies, to say nothing of the countless amateur organizations. Of the strictly theatrical organizations, it is safe to presume that the average receipts per night for the 1,000 companies is $400 each. At seven performances per week for each company the weekly average, as will be seen, would be $2,800. The average theatrical season is 40 weeks. The entire 1,000 companies, with average nightly receipts of $400, would produce weekly receipts at seven performances per week amounting to $2,800,000. This multiplied by 40, the number of weeks in a season, would yield gross receipts amounting to $112,000,000.—Louisville Commercial.

An Old Soldier's Recommendation.

In the late war I was a soldier in the First Maryland Volunteers, Company G. During my term of service I contracted chronic diarrhœa. Since then I have used a great amount of medicine, but when I found any that would give me relief it would injure my stomach, until Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy was brought to my notice. I used it and will say it is the only remedy that gave me permanent relief and no bad results follow. I take pleasure in recommending this preparation to all of my old comrades, who, while giving their services to their country, contracted this dreadful disease as I did, from eating unwholesome and uncooked food. County Treasurer Stofen, who was overpowered and robbed of between $7,000 and $8,000 in Santa Rosa on Friday of last week, previous to being elected to the office six years ago, was a resident of this valley and he has many tried and true friends down this way who deeply sympathize with him in his misfortune, but who rejoice that he escaped with his life. It was evidently the purpose of the robber when he locked him up in the Treasurer's vault after securing the money to smother him to death, which surely would have been his fate had not his noble wife came to his rescue and released him from his living tomb. The terrible ordeal which Captain Stofen passed through will never be effaced from his memory.

A CANNERY.

A Proposition to Build One Being Agitated.

SOME OF THE ADVANTAGES SONOMA OFFERS.

Good Thing for the Stockholder, Farmer and Business Man.

The building of a cannery in Sonoma is again being agitated in this valley. Several years ago the proposition was advanced through these columns and the advantages of such an enterprise in our midst were fully set forth.

The proposition at that time met with the approval of almost every farmer and business man in Sonoma Valley, and would have been carried out had not the rascally "boomers" happened along and promised among other deceiving things to erect a $20,000 cannery in this valley. Relying upon that promise, which was given out solely for the purpose of selling town lots and small farms at exorbitant prices—a bait thrown out as it were to catch suckers—the original proposition was abandoned against the protests of this journal. That is the reason why this valley has been without a cannery the past five years. Now, that the building of this very necessary adjunct to town and valley has again been revived we trust it will lead to something more substantial than mere talk.

With fruit canneries in all the large towns of Sonoma county, which have been operated for a number of years with profit to the stockholders and to the advantage of surrounding fruit-growers, business men and the working classes, we can see no reason why a cannery in Sonoma should not prove equally as beneficial to its people.

We have two competing lines of railway, and also schooner service between this place and the metropolis in lively competition with both those lines. That being so, there can be no objections on the score of transportation charges—that is to say, we are as well favored, if not not better, in that respect than other Sonoma county towns.

Motive power can also be furnished in Sonoma at less cost than in most other communities. We have an unfailing water supply in a number of adjacent mountain streams, not to mention four or five immense flowing artesian wells right in the heart of town. the waters from which are running to waste. The hills surrounding the valley are covered with a heavy growth of black and white oak and other kinds of trees suitable for fuel if it is desirable to use steam instead of water as a motive power.

Sonoma Valley is now coming to the fore as a fruit-producing section. Owing to the low price that has prevailed for wine the past eight years many of its vineyards have been uprooted and replanted to fruit—peaches, pears, apricots, prunes and plum trees.

These for the most part are now in full bearing and it can be truthfully said that we are now more of a fruit than a wine-producing community, and enough fruit is grown in Sonoma Valley alone to keep a large cannery in operation throughout the canning season.

The experience of our farmers the past five or six years has taught them a dear lesson. They have been practically at the mercy of soulless fruit-buyers and commission merchants. Swindled right and left they have practically been running their farms to enrich others while they are impoverishing themselves.

The past season has been no exception to the rule and thousands upon thousands of dollars worth of fruit were shipped from the various railway stations in this valley to Chicago and other Eastern cities to be sold on commission, without a dollar being realized by the producer.

Things have now come to such a pass that it is about time our fruit-growers were calling a halt to emancipate themselves from the clutches of unprincipaled if not dishonest middlemen.

As a starter we can see no better way out of the dilemma than the erection in this city of a cannery operated on the co-operative plan to handle the fruit produced in Sonoma Valley.

The way things are at present there is every thing to gain and we are sure nothing to loose by such an undertaking. There are other advantages to be gained by the cannery proposition which will prove equally advantageous to the business man as to the farmer.

A cannery in Sonoma will give employment at fair wages to a large number of people, including our idle boys and girls, and thousands of dollars will be earned during the canning season. Most of this money will find its way into the hands of our merchants and property-owners for clothing, groceries and house rent and the town will assume an air of prosperity.

Considering the many advantages to be gained by a fruit cannery in our midst, all of which have not been advanced in this article by any means, it behooves our farmers, business men and property-owners to be up and doing to the end that we have a cannery set up and in running order for the coming season.

We have it on the authority of Mr. A. W. Perry, who so successfully managed the Santa Rosa cannery for ten years, that a cannery can be put up at the present time for $3.000 or $4,000 that will answer all purposes for a starter and that it can be made to pay from the beginning.

We would suggest that a meeting be called in this city for the purpose of thoroughly discussing the proposition and that every farmer in Sonoma Valley be present, including the business men of Sonoma.

COUNTY TREASURY ROBBERY.

No Clue to the Thief—Heavy Reward for His Apprehension.

The robbery of County Treasurer Stofen in the Court House at Santa Rosa, on Friday of last week, in broad daylight, was one of the boldest crimes that has ever been committed in California and created intense excitement all over Sonoma county.

The account of the robbery as first published is substantially correct.

It appears that the burglar gained access to the Treasurer's office by the aid of a skeleton key some time during Thursday night or early Friday morning. Removing his shoes he lay in wait in a room connecting with the main office. When Treasurer Stofen arrived at his office a little before nine o'clock in the morning he took off his overcoat and hat and laid them in a chair. He then went to the big safe which he opened and commenced to carry out the money trays. He had taken out one and was in the act of coming out of the vault with another tray when he was suddenly confronted by a man with an uplifted dagger, who ordered him to "drop that tray of money."

Treasurer Stofen before he could realize what followed, fell unconscious to the floor, either from a blow on the head with a sand bag or from fright, he cannot tell which, as everything was blank to him after he saw the robber standing over him with uplifted dagger.

Having silenced Treasurer Stofen the bold robber hastily seized all the money in sight and thrust the unfortunate official into the vault, locked him in and then decamped, taking the precaution as he made his exit to see that the door leading from the main office into the hall was securely locked.

The robbery took place at 9 o'clock in the morning and was not discovered until 4:30 in the afternoon.

Mrs. Stofen, wife of the Treasurer, who is also his deputy, had been to Cloverdale on some business connected with the Order of the Eastern Star of which she is a member. She returned to Santa Rosa on the 3:30 train. She went to the Court House and finding the door of her husband's office locked, thought he had gone home. On arriving at her home she was surprised to learn that he had been away all day. Mrs. Stofen then returned to the Court House greatly alarmed and secured the services of the janitor, who opened the door leading into the Treasurer's office with his pass key. The first thing that met their eyes was Treasurer Stofen's hat and coat and the empty money trays.

Just then Mrs. Stofen detected a slight sound inside the vault. Struck almost dumb with terror she rushed to the big vault and after trying the combination twice succeeded in opening the ponderous doors.

Treasurer Stofen was found lying on the floor bathed in perspiration, speechless and almost dead. He had been entombed for seven hours and a small ventilation tube in the vault is all that saved his life.

When he was sufficiently revived he gave an account of the robbery substantially as narrated above.

He could not very well describe the robber, but said he was a tall man.

The robbery was no doubt planned and carried out by some one familiar with the Treasurer's office and all its workings.

In addition to other precautions taken the thief had cut the burglar alarm wires which connect the office with Sheriff Allen's rooms.

Treasurer Stofen has sent out the following notice offering a reward:

ONE THOUSAND DOLLARS REWARD.

The above sum will be paid for the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who assaulted County Treasurer P. N. Stofen and robbed the Treasurer's office of Sonoma county, California, on Friday, December 28, 1894. Signed,

P. N. STOFEN.

Dated Santa Rosa, Dec. 29, 1894.

At latest accounts no clew whatever has been obtained leading to the detection of the robber, who has undoubtedly made good his escape with the swag, amounting to over $7,000 in gold coin.

A Scotch housewife says that her flannels never shrink and it is because she washes them in cold water. She puts them in clean cold soap suds and washes them directly, then she puts them through a second suds and rinces them in cold water and hangs them out to dry without wringing them at all. She never washes flannels on a rainy or cloudy day, but always waits for sunshine.

One of the most effective portieres is a silk rag curtain made of bits of silk of all kinds and description. Velvets, satins, brocades and bright bits of every kind are used to make it. They are sewn together and cut of uniform width like the rags of a rag carpet. Almost any weaver of rag carpet could brobably weave such portieres, they have a very picturesque, Oriental look, that is far more effective than any portiere that can be purchased anywhere near the price.

BECAUSE inferior and cheaper made baking preparations are sold at wholesale at a price so much lower than ROYAL, some grocers are urging consumers to buy them in place of the ROYAL at the same retail price.

If you desire to try any of the pretended substitutes for ROYAL BAKING POWDER bear in mind that they are all made from cheaper and inferior ingredients, and are not so great in leavening strength nor of equal money value. Pay the price of the ROYAL BAKING POWDER for the ROYAL only.

THE STORM.

Biggest of the Season — Shellville and Embarcadero Under Water—Trains Delayed.

The storm of the past week reached its height on Thursday and Friday and was the heaviest of the season. Sonoma Creek and the small tributary streams were running bank full yesterday morning.

Schellville and Embarcadero are inundated and the country surrounding those places is one vast sea of water, but no damage is apprehended to life or property unless it be the washing away of fencing, slight damage to orchards and vineyards and the drowning of some stock.

The road beds of both the Donahue and Southern Pacific Railway Companies are reported to have suffered somewhat from a number of washouts near Schellville, which delayed the arrival and departure of trains yesterday. A subsidence of the storm this morning, however, has enabled the section men to repair both roads so that trains will be run on time to-day.

Firemens' Ball.

The ball given by the Sonoma Volunteer Firemen on New Years' eve was attended by sixty couple and was a success socially. Financiall, however, the firemen came out of the little end of the horn, owing to the apathy of our townspeople, and the expenses exceeded the receipts. This is a reflection on Sonoma, the leading citizens of which were conspicuous for their absence. The Firemen are a noble band of volunteers organized to protect the lives and property of our citizens from destruction by fire without compensation unless it be the appreciation of those citizens. The firemen are subject to severe monthly drills and are compelled to attend a regular business meeting once a month. They must also pay dues and are fined for noncompliance with the rules governing the organization, the money accruing from which has been applied in the past to caring for their sick, burying their dead and purchasing a fire bell and uniforms. This being so, we cannot refrain from remarking that it is very shabby, to say the least, for the people of Sonoma to lose interest in its fire company. Its members have saved thousands of dollars worth of property and reduced the rate of insurance 50 per cent. inside the town limits since the company was organized seven years ago, and they have done this without hope of reward except in the consciousness of having done their duty as firemen and useful citizens.

QUEEN AGAINST HER WILL.

Margaret Young Reluctantly Rules Over Some South Sea Islands.

The bark Helen N. Almy, just returned to San Francisco from a trading voyage among the islands of the south Pacific, brings the story of a princess who rules over the Manua group against her wishes, though her subjects worship her much after the fashion that the Peruvians humbled themselves before the virgins of the sun.

Margaret Young is the granddaughter of Francis Young, an English sailor who landed at the island of Tau nearly 100 years ago and married the native queen. Through the death of all the heirs apparent to the throne of the Manuas Margaret found herself called upon to rule. The news was conveyed to her at Apia some months ago by a delegation of chiefs from Manua, and she was forced by the laws of heredity obtaining in the southern archipelago to accompany them back to Tau, where she was installed as queen.

She is 22 years of age and highly educated. At the time of her sudden call from Apia she was pursuing her studies at a Catholic convent.

Captain Luttrell of the Almy and his wife, who accompanied him on his last trip, were the first white people permitted to interview the queen. She told them that her life was one of misery in spite of the great respect shown her by her native subjects. The sanctity of her dwelling is rigidly preserved by warriors, who stand ready to decapitate the intruder who dares to enter her presence without first being especially summoned.

"The grand chief of the group is the only man that is allowed to approach the queen," explained Captain Luttrell. "He attends to her wants, assisted by two maids, who never leave her side, except when they are called upon to do her bidding. Should any native desire to pay tribute to her in the shape of fish or fowl, he must fasten his gift upon the end of a bamboo pole, advance with closed eyes and thrust the stick through the doorway of the palace. She is not allowed to walk outside her cabin's limits. She must be carried on a litter by her maids, and when she ventures forth upon such a journey subjects are ordered under pain of death to keep hidden in their respective domiciles."

The queen explained to Captain Luttrell that she desired to be freed, but had never dared to say so to those who held her prisoner.

USE FOR THE FERRIS WHEEL.

A Great Scheme to Employ One of the World's Fair Attractions.

The Ferris wheel has been a sort of white elephant on the hands of the owners ever since the World's fair. It paid very well there, but since they have not known what to do with it. It is now proposed to take it to New York and turn it into a sort of gigantic elevator to carry people to a roof garden and skating rink, which will be the highest in the world.

The plan is to erect the wheel as it stood in Chicago. Outside of the wheel and trellis work will be four steel columns. These columns will run closer together as they ascend until the top is reached, 290 feet, where a steel platform, 200 feet square, will be constructed. Ascending from four corners of the platform will be four more steel columns, running up 40 feet to a pyramid tower, protected by a railing, which will serve as an observatory.

In summer the platform will be open and used for a roof garden. In winter it will be closed in with glass and heated with steam. Mr. Ferris believes the platform will be sufficiently large to allow room for a stage and an orchestra when it is desired to use it as a roof garden.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Pardonable Skepticism.

The South Carolina presbytery at a recent meeting received into its membership, after examination, the Rev. James Woodrow, D. D., who has been under a cloud for some time on account of certain views about monkey business—that is to say, the descent of man—which he is supposed to have entertained. The examination was rigid and satisfactory. He was asked if he believed the Holy Scriptures contained the word of God and answered that he did. Further:

"Do you believe that Moses wrote the Pentateuch?"

"Most of it, sir."

"What portion do you think he did not write?"

"The account of his own death."—Charlotte Observer.

Bull Fighting In Politics.

Bull fighting in France has finally developed into a genuine political issue which is giving Prime Minister Dupuy much anxiety. His sweeping orders to all prefects of police to suppress the sport have affected more than 300 parishes in southern France. The mayor of Dax, who has been dismissed by the president of the republic, is a southerner who at first showed signs of submission to the government. Finding that his local popularity was decreasing, he veered round and not only authorized bull fighting, but extended the season until the end of October. Some deputies in the bull fighting districts will take up the cudgels in his defense when the chamber meets.

Queen Victoria's Long Reign.

Since Queen Victoria ascended the throne in England, 57 years ago, the ruling heads of the world have been changed often. Since she went into power every throne in the known world has been vacant at least once and many of them several times. She has had ten premiers, all of whom are dead now except Mr. Gladstone, the Marquis of Salisbury and the Earl of Rosebery. Commencin with Martin Van Buren, 16 men hav held the office of president of the United States since the beginning of her reign, and of these only Benjamin Harrison and Grover Cleveland are alive today.—Kansas City Times.

A PUZZLE IN PRONUNCIATION.

Set Before a Teachers' Institute In Vermont and Left Unsolved.

The following rather curious piece of composition was recently placed upon the blackboard at a teachers institute in Vermont, and a prize of a Webster's Dictionary offered to any person who could read it and pronounce every word correctly. The book was not carried off, as 12 was the lowest number of mistakes in pronunciation made.

A sacrilegious son of Belial who has suffered from bronchitis, having exhausted his finances, in order to make good the deficit, resolved to ally himself to a comely, lenient and docile young lady of the Malay or Caucasian race. He accordingly purchased a calliope and coral necklace of a chameleon hue and securing a suite of rooms at a principal hotel he engaged the head waiter as his coadjutor. He then dispatched a letter of the most unexceptional caligraphy extant, inviting the young lady to a matinee. She revolted at the idea, refused to consider herself sacrificable to his desires and sent a polite note of refusal, on receiving which he procured a carbine and bowie knife, said that he would not now forge fetters hymeneal with the queen and went to an isolated spot, severed his jugular vein and discharged the contents of the carbine into his abdomen. The debris was removed by the coroner.

The mistakes in pronunciation were made on the following words, Sacrilegious, Belial, bronchitis, exhausted, finances, deficit, comely, lenient, docile, Malay, calliope, chameleon, suite, coadjutor, caligraphy, matinee, sacrificable, carbine, hymeneal, isolated, jugular and debris.—Chicago Tribune.

Bank of England Notes.

With the Bank of England the destruction of its notes takes place about once a week and at 7 p. m. It used to be done in the daytime, but made such a smell that the neighboring stockbrokers petitioned the governors to do it in the evening. The notes are previously canceled by punching a hole through the amount (in figures) and tearing off the signature of the chief cashier. The notes are burned in a closed furnace, and the only agency employed is shavings and bundles of wood. They used to be burned in a cage, the result of which was that once a week the city was darkened with burned fragments of notes. For future purposes of reference the notes are left five years before being burned.

The number of notes coming into the Bank of England every day is about 50,000, and 350,000 are destroyed every week, or something like 18,000,000 every year.

The stock of paid notes for five years is about 77,745,000 in number, and they fill 13,400 boxes, which if placed side by side would reach 2¼ miles. If the notes were placed in a pile, they would reach to a height of 5⅝ miles, or if joined end to end would form a ribbon 12,455 miles long.—Chambers' Journal.

Our Christmas Trees.

The newspapers are frequently very pathetic over the enormous destruction of forests, caused by the annual sales of Christmas trees. As trees are in any form valuable only for the pleasure which humanity can derive from them, there seems to be no more reason why they may not be sacrificed for this pleasure when comparatively young as for floor boards when they reach maturer years. The satisfaction that thousands of young folks receive from the Christmas tree is a full compensation for its destruction, and aside from this, as any one knows who may have visited northern forests, the trees usually are far too close together ever to form first class timber. Spruce and firs may be seen growing together as thick as wheat in the grainfield, and to expect timber from such closely growing specimens is entirely out of the question; hence the trees may be cut from the young northern forests without operating against full grown forest trees eventually.—Meehan's Monthly.

Victoria Paraphrased.

During one of Queen Victoria's visits to the highlands of Scotland she was riding down a glen on the estate of the Earl of Dalhousie, when being thirsty she drank from a spring of crystal water which bubbled from a grassy spot among the heather. The rustic well is now covered by a beautiful fountain, which bears the following inscription:

Rest, stranger, on this lovely scene
And drink and pray for Scotland's queen.
VICTORIA.

A great deal of amusement was created by the following couplet penciled below the above and supposed to have been written by an English tourist:

We'll pray for Queen Victoria here,
But go and drink her health in beer.
—London Truth.

An Advertising Dodge.

"Shoe brusches, 10 cents," was what caught the eye of a man passing the shop of a tradesman with whom he had had some dealings. The passerby went in and said, "That isn't the way to spell brushes." "Of course it isn't," said the cheerful merchant. "That's an advertising dodge. You are the tenth man this morning to come in and call my attention to the mistake."—New York Sun.
